Ingersoll Rand Appoints Virginia "Ginny" Mackin as Vice President of Communications and Brand Management

Swords, Ireland, August 8, 2013 – Ingersoll-Rand plc (NYSE:IR), a world leader in creating and sustaining safe, comfortable and efficient environments, named Virginia “Ginny” Mackin as vice president of communications and brand management, effective September 3.

In this role, Mackin will lead the strategy for all internal and external communications, including media relations, brand management, community relations, company reputation management and web communications. She joins Ingersoll Rand from Duke Energy, where she was senior vice president and chief communications officer.

“Ginny’s more than 25 years of communications and brand experience make her an outstanding addition to the Ingersoll Rand team,” said Marcia Avedon, senior vice president of Human Resources and Communications. “Her strong leadership and business success will play a critical role in directing our global communications and brand strategy.”

Prior to Duke Energy, Mackin served as an executive vice president and director at Wells Fargo, where she led the bank’s eastern community bank communications after its merger with Wachovia in 2009. Prior to her role with Well Fargo, she led Wachovia’s communications as executive vice president and director of corporate communications from 2001 to 2009. She worked in positions of increasing responsibility from 1988 to 2001 at Bank of America.

Mackin graduated from Boston College where she received her BA in Speech Communications and Philosophy. She will be based in Davidson, N.C.
