

CODE OF BUSINESS CONDUCT AND ETHICS

Introduction

This Code of Business Conduct and Ethics (“Code”) applies to the employees, officers and directors of Old Republic International Corporation and each of its subsidiaries (jointly, the “Company”). This Code addresses a wide range of business practice issues and does not attempt to address every issue that might arise, and only states certain basic principles. The Company’s Board of Directors, in its oversight capacity, has high standards and clear expectations for ethical behavior to ensure trust, reputation and alignment with our culture.

The Company expects all employees, officers and directors to conduct themselves according to the basic principles in this Code, including the vendors, representatives and other business partners with whom it does business. To ensure full understanding of this Code, the Company requires all new and existing employees to participate in ethics training focused around these principles and overall legal expectations. Violations of the standards in this Code will be subject to appropriate disciplinary action, up to and including termination.

Complying with Laws

All employees, officers and directors should respect and comply with all applicable laws, rules and regulations of the U.S. and other countries, and the states, counties, cities, provinces and other jurisdictions, in which the Company conducts business. The Company does not expect everyone to know all the details of these laws, rules and regulations, but it is important to know enough to determine when to seek advice from supervisors, managers or other appropriate personnel.

Certain laws or legal principles are particularly important. The Company is committed to complying with anti-corruption laws that prohibit bribes, kickbacks, or other corrupt actions to obtain or retain business or obtain improper advantage. Importantly, prohibitions against “insider trading” applicable to the Company and its employees, officers and directors. Generally, employees, officers and directors who have access to or knowledge of confidential or non-public information from or about the Company (or any other company) are not permitted to buy, sell or otherwise trade in the Company’s (or any other company’s) securities, whether or not they are using or relying upon that information. This restriction extends to sharing or tipping others about such information, especially since the individuals receiving such information might utilize such information to trade in the Company’s securities. In addition, the Company has implemented trading restrictions to reduce the risk, or appearance, of insider trading.

Particularly important too are the federal, state and local laws concerning labor and employment and the Company’s commitment to assuring equal employment opportunities for all in connection with the recruitment, hiring, training, compensation, development, promotion, demotion and termination of its employees, including officers, and providing a safe workplace that is free of sexual or any other inappropriate form of harassment.

Treatment of Others

This Code protects human rights at all levels of our Company and the vendor, representatives and other business partners with whom it does business. The Company will not knowingly conduct business with any vendor, representative or other business partner that participates in the exploitation of children, human trafficking, forced labor or physical punishment.

The Company prohibits discrimination, harassment and retaliation with regard to race, color, creed, religion, national origin, ancestry, citizenship status, age, sex or gender, gender identification or gender expression (including transgender status) sexual orientation, marital status, military service and veteran status, physical or mental disability or other protected classifications.

Conflicts of Interest

The Company expects its employees to adhere to the highest standards of ethics and professionalism and to conduct themselves in a manner that will merit and inspire public trust and confidence. Employees must avoid situations that might lead to a conflict of interest or even the appearance of a conflict between the employee's self-interest and his or her duties to the Company and its customers.

All employees, officers and directors should be scrupulous in avoiding a conflict of interest with regard to the Company's interests. A "conflict of interest" exists whenever an individual's private interests interfere or conflict in any way (or even appear to interfere or conflict) with the interests of the Company. A conflict situation can arise when an employee, officer or director takes actions or has interests that may make it difficult to perform his or her Company work objectively and effectively. Conflicts of interest may also arise when an employee, officer or director, or members of his or her family, receives improper personal benefits as a result of his or her position in the Company, whether received from the Company or a third party. This includes bribes in any fashion. Anything of value can be considered a bribe if it is intended or could be perceived to influence a business or governmental decision or action. Loans to, or guarantees of obligations of, employees, officers and directors and their respective family members may create conflicts of interest. Federal law prohibits loans by the Company to directors and executive officers.

Conflicts of interest are prohibited as a matter of Company policy, except under guidelines approved by the Board of Directors or committees of the Board. Any employee, officer or director who becomes aware of a conflict or potential conflict should bring it to the attention of a supervisor, manager or other appropriate personnel or consult the procedures described in this Code.

Corporate Opportunity

Employees, officers and directors are prohibited from (a) taking for themselves personally opportunities that properly belong to the Company or are discovered through the use of corporate property, information or position; (b) using corporate property, information or position for personal gain; and (c) competing with the Company. Employees, officers and directors owe a duty to the Company to advance its legitimate business interests when the opportunity to do so arises.

Confidentiality

Employees, officers and directors of the Company must maintain the confidentiality of confidential information entrusted to them by the Company or those with whom the Company does business, except when disclosure is authorized by the Law Department as it deems required by laws, regulations or legal proceedings. Whenever feasible, employees, officers and directors should consult the Law Department if they believe they have a legal obligation to disclose confidential information. Confidential information includes, but is not limited to, all non-public information that might be considered material by the securities markets or investors, or that might be of use to competitors of the Company, or harmful to the Company or its customers if disclosed.

Fair Dealing

Each employee, officer and director should endeavor to deal fairly with the Company's customers, competitors, officers and employees. None should take unfair advantage of anyone through manipulation, concealment, abuse of privileged information, misrepresentation of material facts or any other unfair dealing practice.

Protection and Proper Use of Company Assets

All employees, officers and directors should protect the Company's assets and ensure their efficient use. Theft, carelessness, and waste have a direct impact on the Company's profitability and its insurance subsidiaries' obligations to their insureds and beneficiaries. All Company assets should be used for legitimate business purposes.

Accounting Complaints

The Company's policy is to comply with all applicable financial reporting and accounting regulations. If any employee, officer or director of the Company has concerns or complaints regarding questionable accounting standards, accounting controls, auditing matters or any other activities believed to be unlawful, contrary to Corporate Policy or otherwise improper may be reported to the Audit Committee of the Company's Board of Directors.

If they do not believe it appropriate or are not comfortable approaching their supervisors about their concerns or complaints, or if they are not satisfied with the resolution of the issue, they may contact either the Audit Committee of the Board of Directors of the Company or the Law Department of the Company. and their confidentiality will be protected, subject to applicable law, regulation or legal proceedings.
