ICE OPENS SINGAPORE TELECOMMUNICATIONS HUB TO SERVE ENERGY MARKET PARTICIPANTS

Released : 08 May 2006

ATLANTA, May 8/PRNewswire-FirstCall/ -- IntercontinentalExchange (NYSE: ICE), the leadingelectronic energy marketplace, announced that it has opened its new Singaporetelecommunications hub. The hub is located at the 1-Net telecommunicationscenter in Singapore and is designed to improve access and reduce connectivitycosts to ICE's electronic trading platform for ICE market participants in theAsian region.

The Singapore location is the fourth telecommunications hub thatICE has established. A European hub was opened last year for Western Europeancustomers, a Chicago hub opened in January, and a London hub was opened inMarch. ICE plans to establish a hub in New York in June. Market participantscan use these hubs to access ICE's energy futures and over-the-counter (OTC)markets, and ICE can customize the bandwidth size for their connections, aswell as the type of circuits they require to meet their specific data needs.
