

OLD REPUBLIC POLICIES
RELATIVE TO INVESTORS' & OTHER STAKEHOLDERS' INFORMATION REQUESTS

Update March 1, 2021

We appreciate very much and welcome existing and future investors' as well as other stakeholders' informational interest in Old Republic's business. Recurring requests for meetings and interim updates, however, place a great burden on our senior management team to respond effectively given the concurrent and important demands of managing our business. Of necessity, we therefore limit ourselves to the following approach to information dissemination in order to obtain maximum value from limited time resources:

1. The Corporation Speaks with One Voice for itself and all of its subsidiaries. It only does so through its Chief Executive Officer or its Chief Executive Officer's published statements and reports (Annual statutory or GAAP reports filed with State Insurance Regulatory Authorities or the Securities and Exchange Commission), news releases, letters to shareholders, and similar documents.
2. Quarterly and annual written earnings releases are first publicly made through PR Newswire and simultaneously posted on the Old Republic website.
3. From time to time the Company may schedule follow-up conference call to discuss its periodic financial results following publication of earnings releases. We welcome and encourage questions during the question and answer portion of these conference calls. The calls are accessible live on the web or by telephone, and a replay is available through the "Investors" page on Old Republic's website, generally within 48 hours of the conference call.
4. The same approach is followed relative to occasional news releases dealing with important unusual or non-recurring transactions or events.
5. Face-to-face meetings may be organized from time to time by independent financial analysts, provided that they are attended by several invited guests who practice as professional financial analysts or portfolio managers. In these as well as any other meetings we maintain necessary confidentiality of non-public and proprietary information, and utmost fidelity to Regulation FD precepts. In such meetings we follow the Investor Presentation that is updated and posted each quarter on the Old Republic website.

6. Annual visits in our Chicago office and necessary telephonic updates with representatives of the three independent rating agencies currently commissioned to provide us with periodic rating reviews. These agencies are: A.M. Best, Moody's, and Standard & Poor's.

  7. Except for the independent rating agencies and insurance regulators, Old Republic does not hold meetings with financial analysts or portfolio managers during "quiet periods" in the course of which quarterly financial reports are in process of completion. These quiet periods typically extend from the third week of the third month of each quarter through two business days following publication of the earnings release.
