

Quest Diagnostics Reopens Louisiana Laboratory Damaged by Hurricane Katrina

August 2, 2006

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 2 /PRNewswire-FirstCall/ -- Quest Diagnostics Incorporated (NYSE: DGX), the nation's leading provider of diagnostic testing, information and services, announced it has reopened its laboratory in Metairie, Louisiana, after successfully completing reconstruction to the facility following substantial damage to the building and testing equipment caused by Hurricane Katrina.

Quest Diagnostics' Metairie laboratory performs rapid-response testing as well as anatomic pathology, microbiology and cytology testing. Additional testing is performed in the Houston laboratory, which began serving the Louisiana healthcare market following the hurricane and became home for many of the company's displaced New Orleans-area employees.

"I want to personally thank our employees in Louisiana and Houston who showed unwavering commitment to putting patients first," said Michael A. Peat, Ph.D., Managing Director of the Gulf Coast Business Unit, which serves Houston and New Orleans.

"As a local employer in New Orleans for more than thirty-five years, Quest Diagnostics is proud to be a part of a remarkable community that is stepping up to the task of rebuilding itself in the aftermath of Hurricane Katrina. Sincere thanks to our valued customers in the healthcare community who stood by us while our employees implemented back-up plans to ensure that we could continue to provide needed health testing services."
