Independent Monitoring Committees in Turkey and Greece

7/25/2015

As part of our commitment to transparency and accountability, we helped establish Independent Environmental Committees at Kisladag, Efemcukuru in Turkey and at Stratoni in Greece. These groups include academics, scientists, NGOs and representatives from the local authorities.

Committee members collect environmental data from our sites and submit it to third-party laboratories for testing, to ensure independence and accuracy. This approach has helped us develop our credibility by providing our stakeholders with trusted third-party information.

To further promote transparency, we are currently developing an online database where all of the environmental data from Stratoni, Skouries and Olympias will be publicly available.
