"We are extremely grateful for Steve's leadership as General

Counsel over the past ten years, and are fortunate that he will continue to support EVO in his new role as Special Counsel," said James G. Kelly, Chief Executive Officer, EVO. "Steve joined EVO after 23 years in private practice, including as a partner at King & Spalding. He has been an integral part of virtually all strategic initiatives during his tenure as General Counsel, guiding the Company in nearly 30 acquisitions and numerous financing transactions, including our initial public offering in May 2018. He played an instrumental role in our becoming a leading global payments provider and his contributions, which included recruiting his successor three years ago, will ensure a smooth transition for the Company. I want to thank Steve for his tremendous contributions and unwavering dedication to the Company."

“On behalf of EVO’s Executive Management Team and Board of Directors, I am very excited to welcome Kelli as our new General Counsel,” added Mr. Kelly. “Over the past three years, Kelli has shown herself to be an impressive leader with extraordinary legal expertise, gaining the confidence of EVO’s Board and Executive Management Team. She will be extremely valuable to our organization as we continue to grow and execute on our strategic initiatives.”

Ms. Sterrett has served as EVO’s Senior Vice President and Deputy General Counsel since 2018. Prior to EVO, she served as Vice President and Deputy General Counsel of Scientific Games Corporation after a career as a senior corporate attorney at Gibson, Dunn & Crutcher LLP in New York. Ms. Sterrett holds a B.A. in Political Science from Colgate University and a J.D. from Columbia University.
